Michelle B. Charters

Michelle Charters is Director of Project Immunize Virginia, a statewide immunization coalition, and a consultant for CoalitionsWork, a consulting group based in the Hampton Roads region of eastern Virginia that is dedicated to building coalitions and partnerships for community health. She works closely with the Virginia Department of Health to coordinate to facilitate, coordinate and evaluate coalition activities that promote timely immunizations across the lifespan. With over 20 years of experience in health non-profit organizations, Ms. Charters has held management positions in program development and fundraising with the American Heart Association, American Lung Association and the National Kidney Foundation. She has also worked extensively in volunteer management, supporting special event committees to governing boards. Serving as a patient advocate in a health system, she identified issues and resolutions for patients and their families. Currently, she is member of the Society for Public Health Education and the American Public Health Association. She holds a Bachelors in Business from Miami University in Ohio as well as Masters in Public Health from the Arnold School of Public Health at the University of South Carolina.
